

Happy, secure girls rise to challenges and achieve great things!

We are a small, nurturing school and our girls' mental well-being is of the utmost importance to us. We want the girls to have a well-rounded education and for their school days to truly be the happiest days of their lives. Universities and employers are no longer relying on academic scores alone to sift through applications but are placing far more importance on the "21st century skills" that incorporate imagination, collaboration, creativity and innovation. These are areas we really encourage and value in our students.

The above does not mean we do not have high expectations academically of our girls. We are well known for ensuring our girls are high achievers. Our girls flourish in the top sets of the schools they go on to and we are congratulated by secondary teachers for preparing our girls so well. Our approach really is second to none! Afterall when does your daughter perform at her best? When she is full of doubt and feels pressured or when she is confident and has a positive mindset? Our girls learn the power of 'yet'! They are not allowed to say they can't do it.... only they can't do it yet!

If you look at the schools our girls move on to you will see we have girls who achieve places at grammar schools and the more academically challenging schools such as Haberdashers, Wycombe Abbey and Cheltenham Ladies College.

You can see our academic success from the graphs below. The green line represents the national average. I am sure you will agree that having several girls achieving scores which indicate that they are three or four years above their chronological age speaks for itself!
